Message from the Principal

Recently I read a book written by a Japanese author, about management. He mentions a funny method of encouraging people. He raised the point that there will be a great difference between a person working harder every day and another being lazier every day.

In fact, it is a Mathematical problem:

$$(1+0.01)^{365} - (1-0.01)^{365}$$

You may think about the solution. It is a reminder to all of us that the being lazy will greatly impact our lives. In other words, being perseverant for a whole year will also impact us much.

Therefore, parents and students should never neglect the importance of being perseverant. If students are able to live wisely under the impact of  $1.01^{365}$ , your lives might change a lot!

Latest Notices (Excerpt):
